INTRODUCTION

Law is all around us! In these pages, you will learn some of what lawyers and judges do to support our federal and state constitutions, uphold our laws, and preserve our way of life.

We hope you enjoy coloring these pictures as much as we have enjoyed bringing them to you.

Lawyers come from all walks of life and have different interests.

Lawyers care about justice and want to help people.

There are different paths to becoming a lawyer after college. Some go straight to law school; some work first, then go to law school.

Lawyers can help people who have been hurt in an accident.

Some lawyers help military members and their families.

Some lawyers help to make sure people's ideas don't get copied by others.

Lawyers help people who want to adopt a child.

If someone commits a crime there are two attorneys at the trial. One tells the judge how the people of the state are hurt by the person breaking the law.

The other may tell the judge that this isn't the person who should be blamed or that this person has an honest excuse.

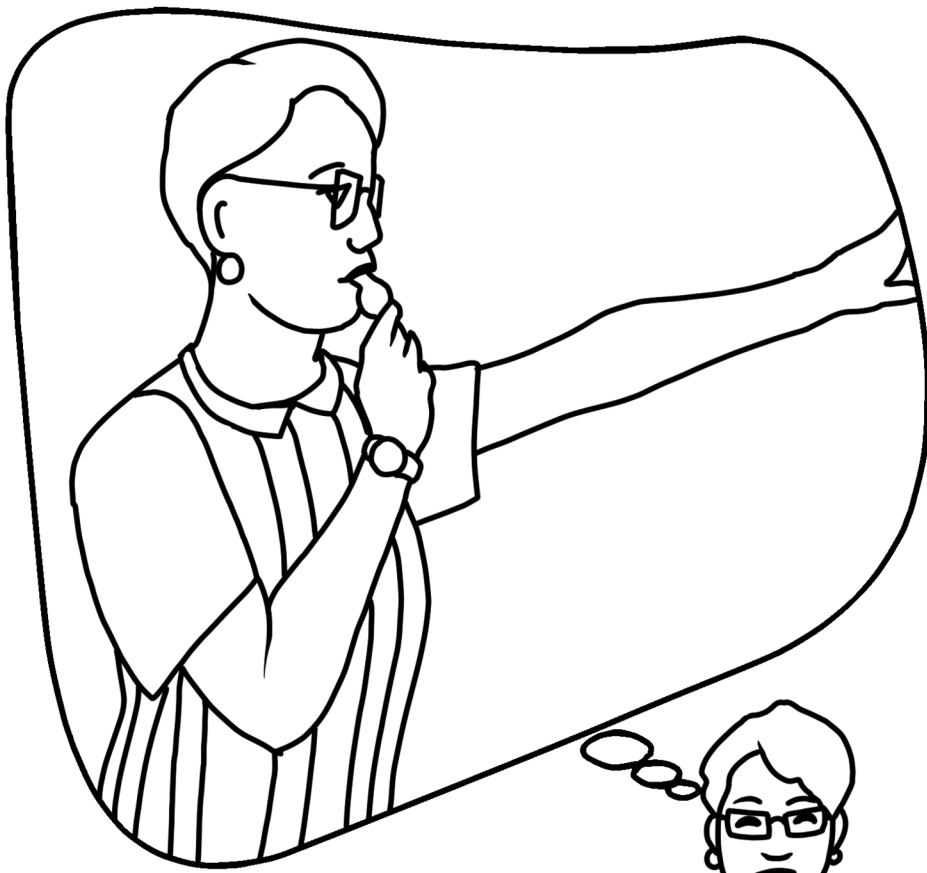

The people, represented by the jury, decide whether the person is guilty or innocent.

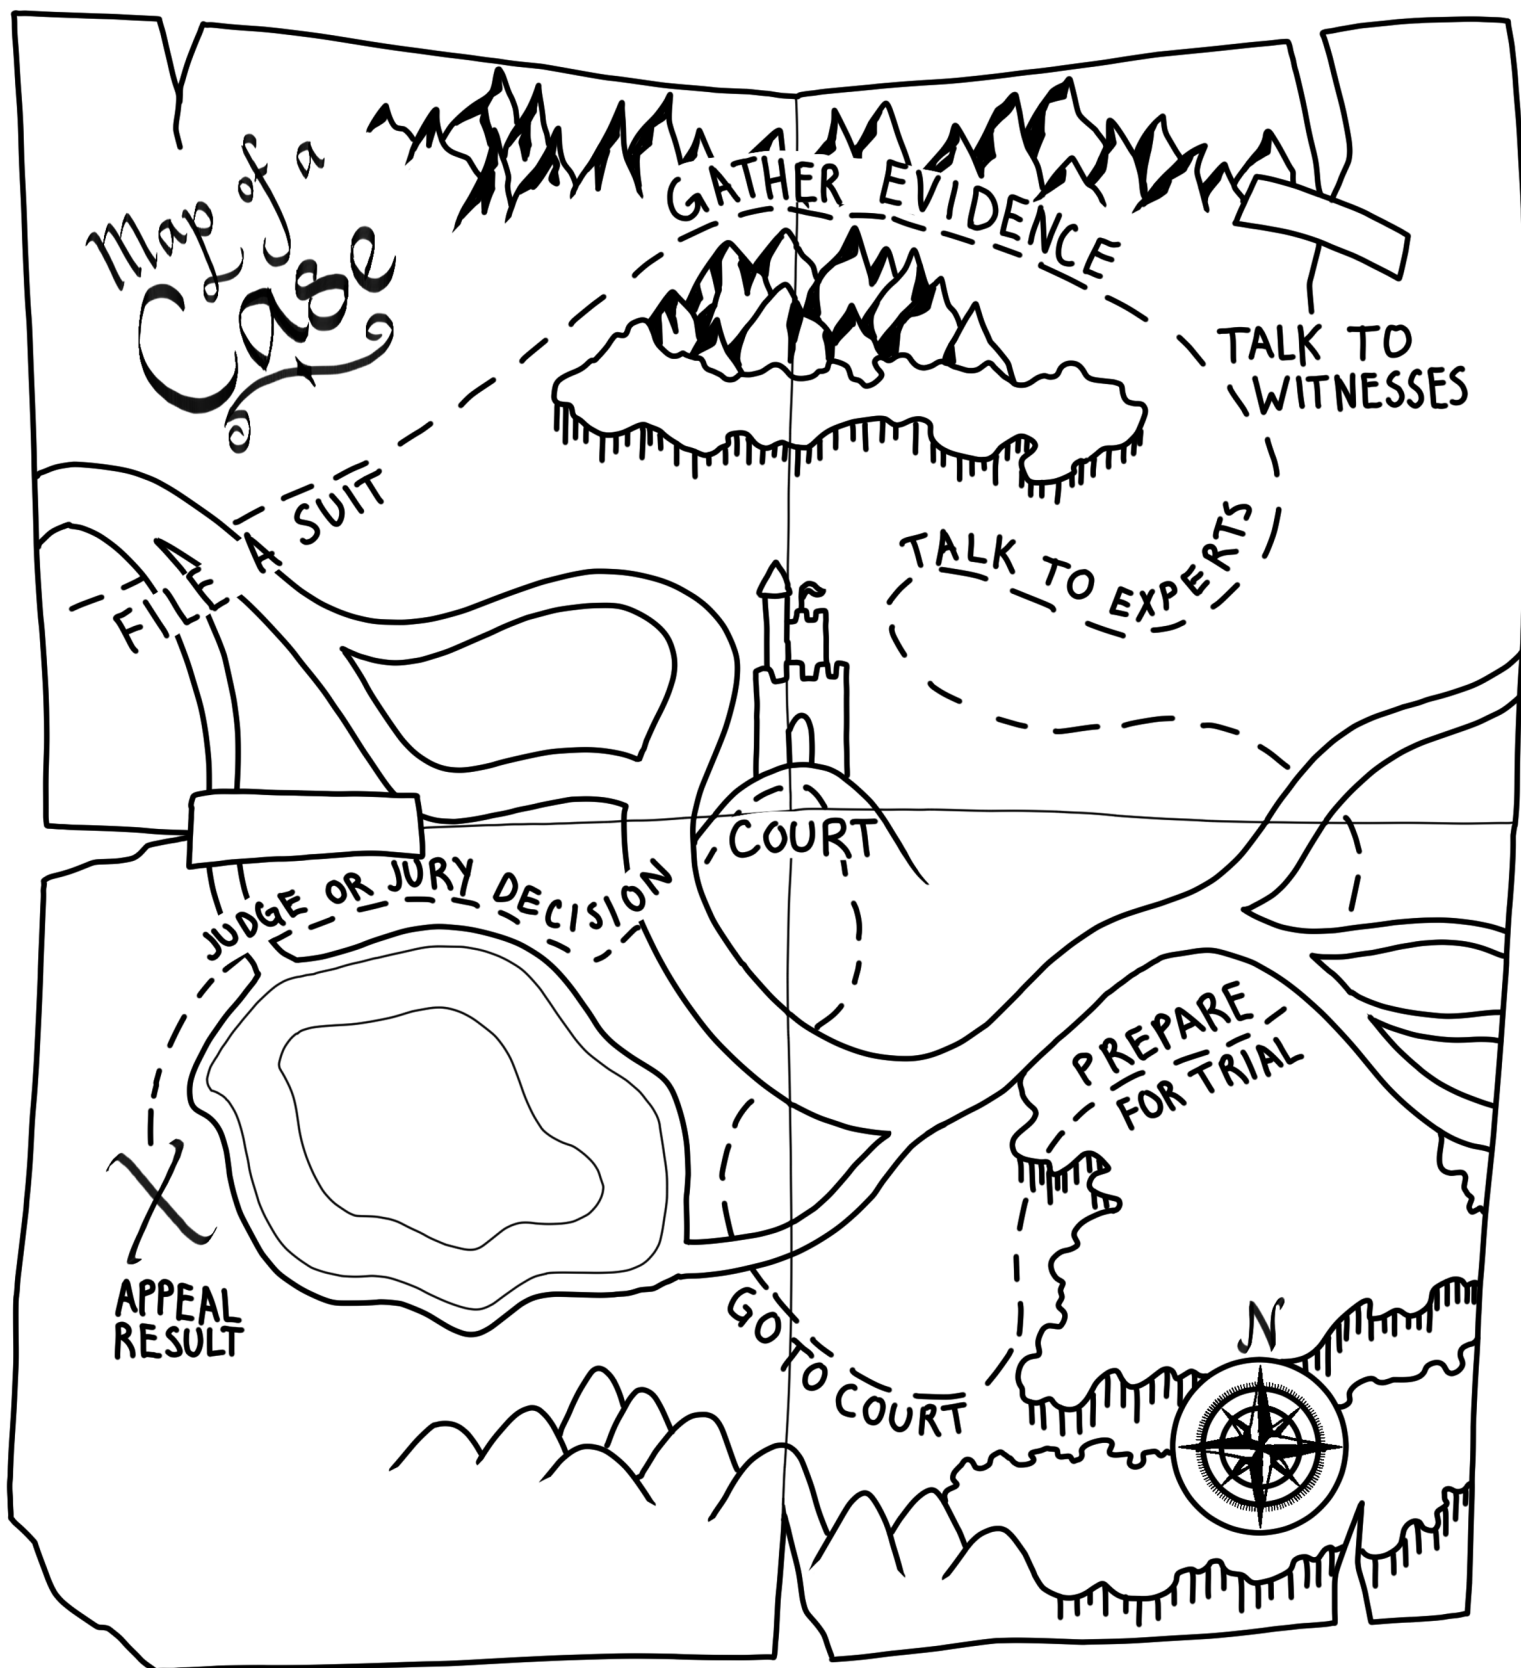

The judge makes sure the trial is fair. In this type of trial, the judge is like an umpire.

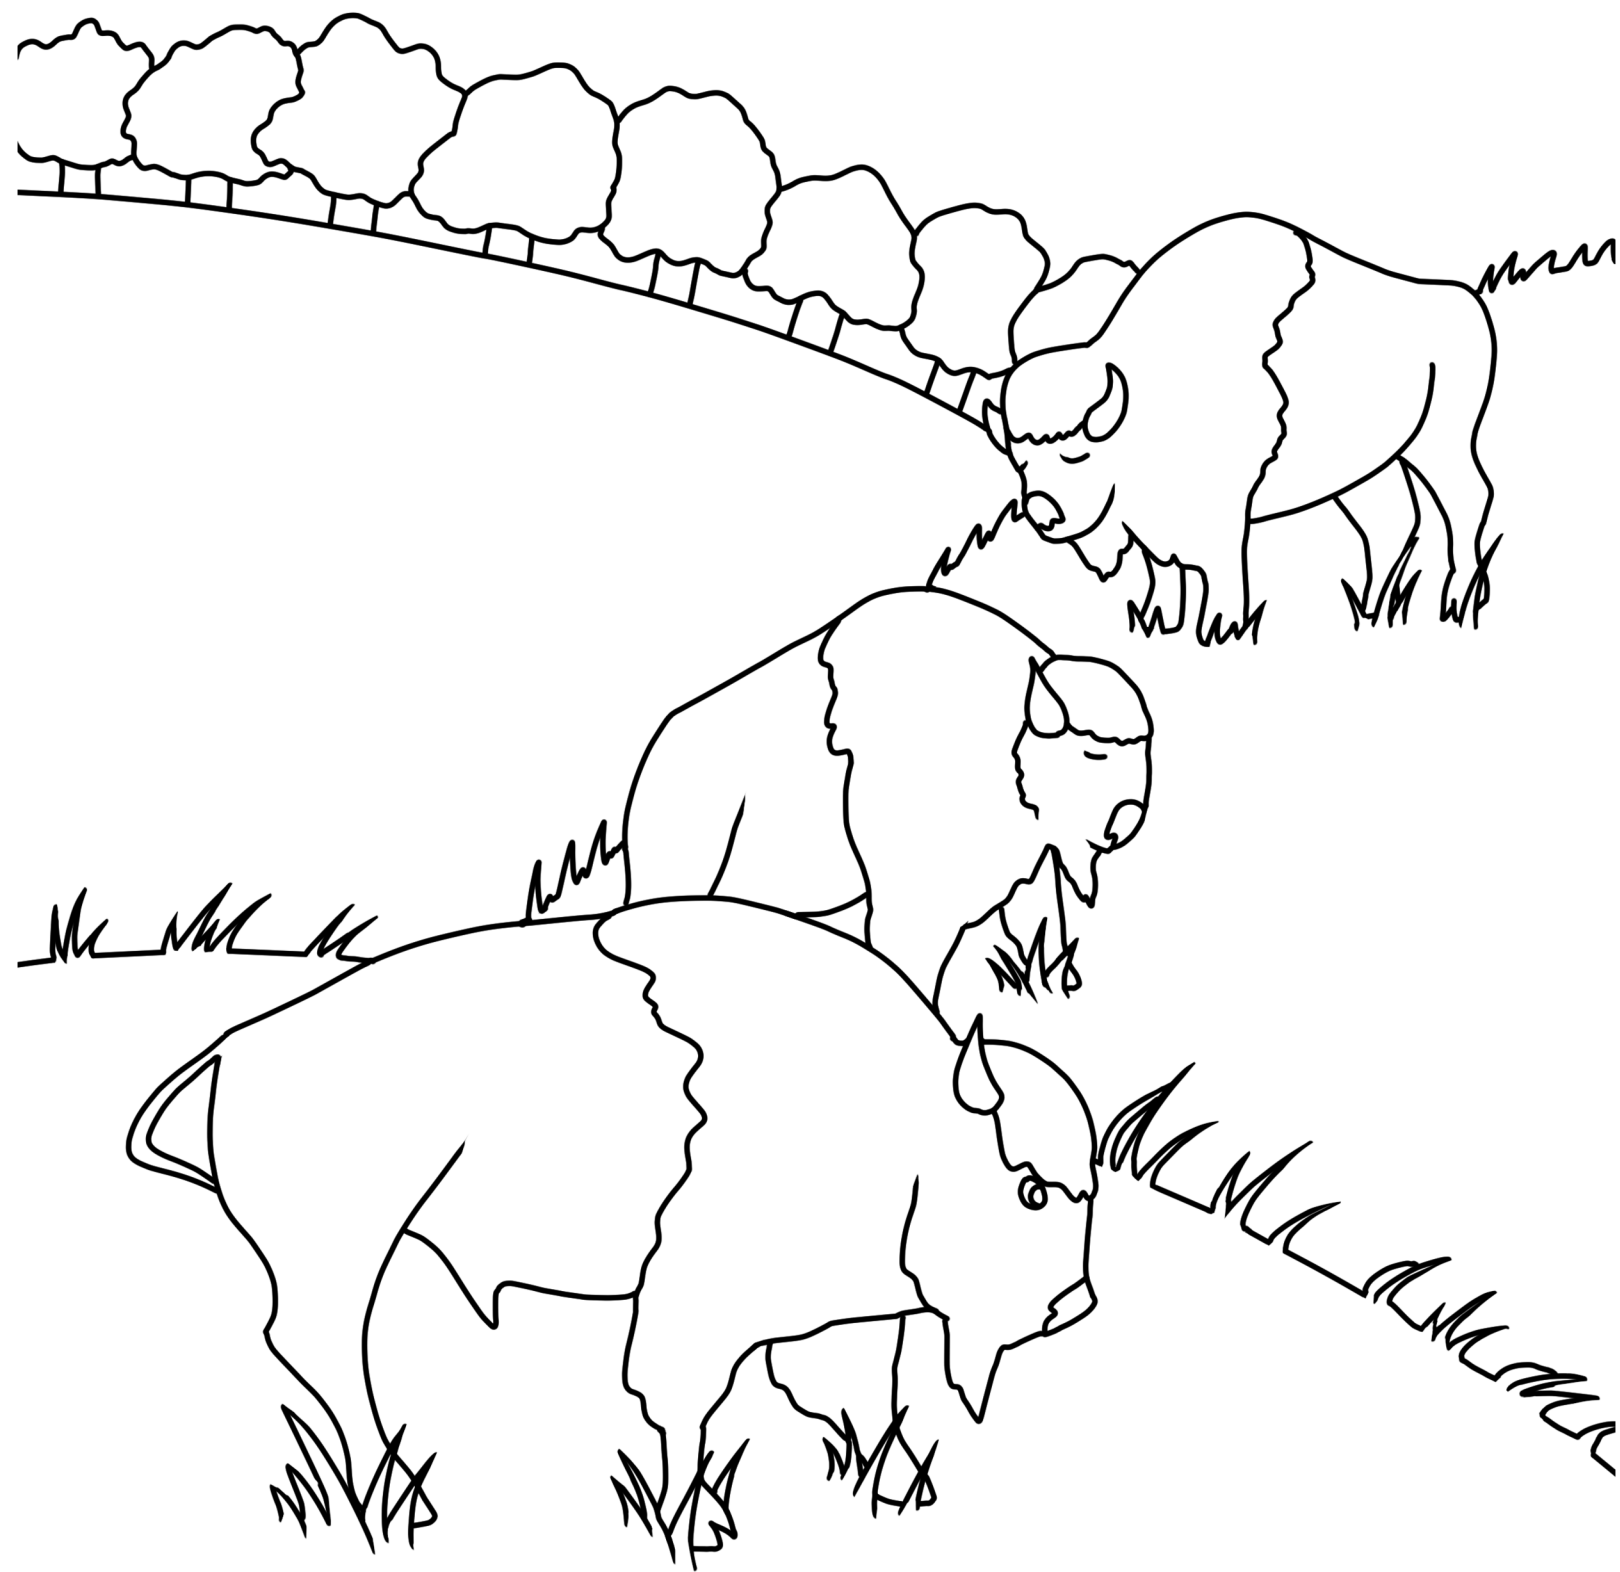

Other times, we may have a disagreement about a contract we signed, a property line, or a product we purchased. When we cannot find a solution, an attorney can tell the judge our 14 side of the story.

The judge will look at the law and similar cases to make a decision during a trial. In this kind of trial, the judge is like a referee.

This is how a case goes from start to finish.

Some lawyers work to make sure that companies and businesses follow laws about keeping our water and air clean and safe.

Some lawyers have an interest in sports and represent players, athletes, or even entire teams.

Other lawyers help people in their regular lives: when they start a business, buy a home, borrow money, or make a will.

Laws give us boundaries so we can enjoy a life of peace with one another.

WE WOULD LOVE TO MEET YOU!

The Federal Bar Association Foundation gave us the Ilene and Michael Shaw Younger Lawyer Public Service Grant so we could make this book for you. The Kansas Bar Foundation provided funds for the beautiful artwork.

As part of this grant, we can also come to your classroom so that you can meet a newer lawyer in person. You could ask us questions about the law and what we do, and maybe even learn how to become a lawyer yourself.

We look forward to meeting you!
